"You have heard that it was said, 'You shall love your neighbor and hate your enemy.' But I say to you, love your enemies, and pray for those who persecute you, that you may be children of your Heavenly Father, for He makes His sun rise on the bad and the good, and causes rain to fall on the just and the unjust. For if you love those who love you, what recompense will you have? Do not the tax collectors do the same? And if you greet your brothers only, what is unusual about that? Do not the pagans do the same? So be perfect, just as your Heavenly Father is perfect" (Matthew 5:43-48).

Letter from the Pastor

Blessed Seventh Sunday in Ordinary Time!

This is the last Sunday of Ordinary time before Lent begins with Ash Wednesday in three days. As a kind of preparation for Lent and the spiritual works of mercy—two of which are to pardon all injuries and to bear wrongs patiently—let me focus on the part of today's Gospel where Jesus says, "Love your enemies, and pray for those who persecute you, that you may be children of your Heavenly Father, for He makes His sun rise on the bad and the good, and causes rain to fall on the just and the unjust." Here is a story about that:

Some years ago, Newsweek Magazine carried a moving story. What first got you interested in the story was the photograph that accompanied it. It showed three boys, ages seven to eleven, kneeling in the front pew of a church. Below the photograph were the words, "This Was Left Behind." The story went on to say that the eldest boy, Jerry, always turned on the radio immediately after he woke up in the morning. He liked to listen to the news while he dressed for school. This particular morning the news was bad. Someone had placed a bomb on United Airlines Flight 629. It exploded over Colorado in midair, killing 44 persons.

Jerry finished dressing and started down the stairs. As he did, he saw his grandmother and the parish priest standing at the foot of the stairs. Jerry took one look at them and said, "My mother and father were on that plane, weren't they?" Jerry was right. Later that day the children of St. Gabriel's, where Jerry and his brothers attended school, asked their pastor for a prayer service for their three classmates. The pastor asked Jerry if this would be all right. Jerry said it would. Then he added, "Could we also pray for the man who killed my mother and father."

Here are some misconceptions about forgiveness:

1) Forgiveness means making ourselves vulnerable to being hurt again.

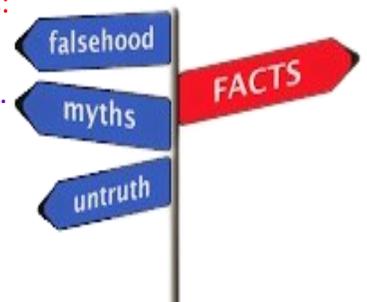

No. Forgiveness does involve feeling pain, but not to being hurt over and over.

2) Forgiveness means condoning what happened.

No. We are called to forgive even while NOT condoning evil actions.

3) Forgiveness means I need to be reconciled with the offender.

No. Forgiveness is something we do on our own with God's grace, regardless of whether the other person repents or not. Reconciliation involves the one offended and the offender.

4) I need to feel like forgiving in order to forgive.

No. It is an act of the will. It is a decision to release people from their offenses against us. They no longer owe us. But to do that properly, we need to let ourselves grieve the damage that was done to us.

Blessed Fat Tuesday and especially Ash Wednesday! (See the schedule on Page Three). And remember that the 40 days of Lent begins next Sunday and includes all of the Sundays of Lent. See you in the Spirit of prayer, fasting, and works of mercy!!!

Fraternally in Jesus and Mary and Joseph,
—Fr. Thomas

Faith Academics Virtue

Common Core Education vs Classical Education Excerpts from Regina Pacis Academy Website

Private School Settings

Classical education in the private school setting, specifically Catholic schools, is designed to educate children in a Christocentric environment. About 78% of students enrolled in private schools are enrolled in religious-based schools because it is essential to parents that their children receive an academically excellent education while at the same time be exposed to the teachings and practice of their faith.

Common Core education principles do not support that balance. Instead, "teaching to the test" is the focus. In classical instruction, the focus is not on rote learning and measuring the learning but instead on fostering a love of learning. In classical teaching, the subject matter is broad, interesting, and not directed by testing outcomes. (Continued next week.)

The Real St. Therese

An installment from
The Passion of Thérèse of Lisieux by Guy Faucher

At six o'clock the Angelus rang. Therese, still holding her crucifix firmly in her hands, looked for a long time at the Virgin of the Smile. A few minutes past seven, Mother Prioress allowed the community, which had been there for more than two hours, to leave. The prioress remained with the three Martin sisters. Therese asked the Mother Prioress: "Mother, is this the final agony? I will never know how to die!" Mother Marie de Gonzague assured her: "Yes, my little child, but God perhaps wills to prolong it for more hours." "Well, alright, I would not want to suffer for a shorter time..." Mother Agnès then described what followed: "Her breathing suddenly became weaker and she fell back on the pillow. The infirmary bell was rung, calling the nuns to assemble quickly. Mother Marie de Gonzague said in a loud voice: 'Open all the doors.' Hardly had the nuns knelt when Therese pronounced very distinctly her final act of love: 'Oh, Jesus,' she said, looking at her crucifix. Then a moment later: 'My God ... I ... love you!' We thought that was the end, when, suddenly, she raised her eyes—shining with an indescribable happiness. Sister Marie of the Eucharist approached with a candle to get a better look at that sublime gaze. The light from the candle passed back and forth in front of her eyes but did not cause any movement in her eyelids. Then she closed her eyes and the whiteness of her face, which had become more accentuated during the ecstasy, returned to normal and she had a heavenly smile. We did not have to close her eyes, for she had closed them herself after the vision. Mother Prioress then had the community retire, and Sister Aimée, Sister Marie, and I prepared her for burial. Her face had a child-like expression and she didn't seem any more than twelve years old. When she was dressed, we placed in her hand, together with her crucifix and rosary, a palm branch, and next to her, on a small table, we put the statue of the miraculous Virgin.

The Servant of God retained the expression she had when she died. Her head was turned towards the right and her smile was so marked that we thought she was only asleep and having a happy dream. Her limbs were supple until the coffin was closed. The following afternoon, Friday, October 1st, 1897, her body was taken to the choir where it was placed in front of the grille until Sunday evening when—because there were some beginning signs of decomposition—the lid was closed. The Servant of God was however still beautiful, but the veins in her forehead had swollen and the tips of her fingers were a purplish-blue.

A Spiritual Bouquet to Our Lady of Fatima

The Five First Saturdays Devotion

In 1917, at Fatima, Our Lady asked us to make the Five First Saturdays Devotion as reparation to her Immaculate Heart: "I promise to assist at the moment of death, with all the graces necessary for salvation, all those who, on the first Saturday of five consecutive months shall confess, receive Holy Communion, recite five decades of the Rosary, and keep Me company for fifteen minutes while meditating on the fifteen mysteries of the Rosary, with the intention of making reparation to Me."

Make a commitment to offer a spiritual bouquet of this devotion to Our Lady of Fatima! Next weekend, February 25 and 26, after all the Masses, we will be outside the church to provide the Spiritual Bouquet packet to all those interested; this packet includes an offering form and various devotional materials. For any questions, please contact Maria Alejandra at (626) 282-2744, Ext 235.

Apparitions in Fatima: The apparitions of the Angel of Peace in 1916 were a prelude and a divine preparation to Our Lady's Apparitions of 1917 in Fatima. In the spring of 1916, three children—Lucia (9), Francisco (8), and Jacinta (6)—received the visit of an Angel at Cova da Iria near the village of Fatima in Portugal. The angel told the children: "Do not be afraid! I am the Angel of Peace. Pray with me."

He prostrated himself with his forehead touching the ground, and repeated the following prayer three times:

"My God, I believe; I adore; I trust, and I love Thee. I beg pardon for those who do not believe, do not adore, do not trust, and do not love thee" (Fatima Pardon Prayer). "Pray thus," said the Angel before departing. "The Hearts of Jesus and Mary are attentive to the voice of your supplication."

The Real Therese will continue next week.

Pray the Rosary!

Quiet Listening Prayer

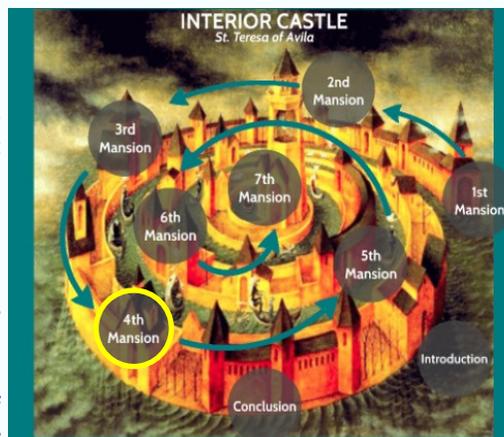

The Interior Castle: The Fourth Mansion
 By St. Teresa of Avila

The second reason [for not trying to stop our mind from thinking] is that these interior works are all gentle and peaceful; doing something arduous would cause more harm than good. I call any force that we might want to use "something arduous"; for example, it would be arduous to hold one's breath.

Leave the soul in God's hands, let Him do whatever He wants with it, with the greatest resignation to the will of God.

The third reason is that the very care used to not think of anything will perhaps rouse the mind to think very much. The fourth reason is that what is most essential and pleasing to God is that we be mindful of His honor and glory and forget ourselves and our own profit and comfort and delight. How is a person forgetful of self if he is so careful not to stir or even to allow his intellect or desires to be stirred to a longing for the greater glory of God, or if he rests in what he already has? When His Majesty desires the intellect to stop, He occupies it in another way and gives it a light so far above what we can attain that it remains absorbed. Then, without knowing how, the intellect is much better instructed than it was through all the soul's efforts not to make use of it.

Since God gave us our faculties that we might work with them, and in this work they find their reward, there is no reason to charm them; we should let them perform their task until God appoints them to another greater one.
